

CHRISTMAS MAIL

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYEES WADING THROUGH MASSES OF HOLIDAY GIFTS

If any one wants to know whether Christmas is being celebrated in Glendale and whether Glendale people are very much a part of the rest of the world, he should visit the post office on Brand Boulevard and take a peep into the extra room north of the main office, where the incoming Christmas packages are assembled and sorted. He will probably find carriers there snatching a bite to eat between deliveries, but looking interested and cheerful in spite of their big task. When the representative of the Glendale Evening News was permitted to take a look, the whole floor was covered with rows of packages, big and little, with narrow aisles between. A rough count showed that not less than one thousand pieces of mail were there spread out, and it was just one mail. This afternoon there will be as many more and the post office employees say it will keep up just like that until after New Years. There are twelve men on the regular force of carriers and three extras have been taken on. Robert Carmack, a high school student, is one; the other two are soldiers discharged from the S. A. T. C., Wilbur Lee and Fred Wilson, who are helping to deliver with autos. The mail is being handled in an efficient, systematic way, and there is no present prospect of congestion.

The same thing is true at the express office in the P. E. station, where Mr. Le Grand, his assistant, Mr. Turner, and the rest of the force are leaving no stone unturned to accomplish the delivery of everything entrusted to them and also to handle outgoing express, which was about a third heavier this year than last. Most of it, Mr. Turner, says, was California products, chiefly fruit.

Merchants declare their holiday sales have been much larger than last year and they attribute it to the fact that Glendale people have bought at home more than they have ever done before.

DAVID BLACK HAS FURLOUGH

David Black of Glendale, who for several months has had charge of all of the Y. M. C. A. work in the base hospital at Camp Kearny, arrived in Glendale Thursday on a ten days' furlough. Mr. Black was of the opinion that soon after the close of the war he would be released from his duties, but such was not the case and now with the return of soldiers from overseas Camp Kearny is a busy place.

On Sunday, the 15th instant, the first soldier patients arrived from France. There were eighteen in number. Other patients were expected in the latter part of the week. Mr. Black said the camp was in quarantine from Sept. 28 until a few days ago. Many of the boys have been very ill with the influenza.

A Christmas tree is being planned for under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Several men with two large trucks went up into the mountains to get a tree. A year ago they had one 60 feet tall, and likely this year the effort will surpass that of last year. The soldiers will be given a gala Christmas.

Mr. Black is very much interested in the work in hand and he speaks very highly of the men who are carrying on the Y. M. C. A. work in the camp. Mrs. Black and daughter, who had been spending a number of months in San Diego, returned to Glendale early in December.

DEATH OF DR. BAHRENBURG

Friends in Glendale were greatly grieved Sunday to hear of the passing of Dr. J. E. Bahrenburg of Park Avenue, who had been in a hospital in Bakersfield for some weeks. His wife and two sons, Drs. George and Norman Bahrenburg, accompanied the remains to Los Angeles and are now at the Park Avenue home. Interment will be made in the family lot at Inglewood Cemetery after Christmas.

FAMILY REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. Houdyshell of 237 North Maryland are anticipating a happy family reunion on Christmas Day, when, with their daughters, Misses Sadie and Sybil, they will entertain their sons, Prof. C. E. Houdyshell of Laverne with his wife and daughters, Eleanor and Roberta, and G. A. Houdyshell of Los Angeles with his wife and daughter, Viola.

WEATHER FORCECAST—Fair and colder in the interior.

A WAR VETERAN

OKIE WAYNE MURPHY, WOUNDED AT CHATEAU THIERRY, SPENDS FURLOUGH HERE

In Okie Wayne Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Murphy of 620 East California Avenue, Glendale has a veteran of the great war. That does not mean that he is ancient in years, for he does not look to be more than 19, but a gold stripe on each sleeve proclaims the fact that he has seen six months' service at the front and that he has been wounded in battle. Though he bears the scars of nine wounds, there is nothing in his outward seeming to betray them. He is straight and soldierly in bearing, his face is unmarked; nevertheless, his shoulder and one leg were fractured by machine gun fire, his chest penetrated close to the lungs, and there were six or seven nasty wounds from shrapnel. It all happened on one day in the midst of some of the hottest fighting in the battle of Chateau Thierry, which lasted for twenty-seven days of continuous fighting, from about the middle of July to the middle of August. And he was one of the boys who helped to turn the tide of victory toward the Allies.

He enlisted just two days after war was declared, while his parents were living at Santa Ana, and was trained at Camp Kearny for about a year. Early in June, with Company M of the 59th Infantry, he left for France. It was a critical time for the Allies when these boys arrived, and they had not been in camp a week before they were sent to the front and plunged into the fight without any seasoning. Furthermore, the "Fighting 59th," as it came to be called, was put against the Fourth Prussian Guard, considered the cream of the Hun troops. When asked how our troops behaved, he said: "Our boys went through them just like a whirlwind. The Americans kept going and wouldn't retreat. When things got pretty hot for experienced troops they retreat a little and go around. The Germans declared our artillery was crazy and the infantry drunk. The German officers told their men we were English soldiers in American uniforms. When they found out who we were they were frightened and the officers had to threaten them from the rear to make them go forward against us. They were especially afraid of the bayonet and when we got at close quarters always threw up their hands. The first three days was the hardest of the fighting, for the Germans were entrenched. When we got them dislodged and could fight in the open it was easier and we could keep them going. From July 15 to August 8 we pushed the Germans back 25 kilometers. A kilometer is five-eighths of a mile."

When asked for details of the method of fighting he said the men were placed in certain formations and at a signal went forward in that formation and fought with automatic rifles and if at close quarters, with bayonets. The Germans have bayonets as well as the Allied troops, but of a more murderous sort, with a saw-tooth edge. The fighting was practically continuous for twenty-four hours, he said, with no chance to sleep except to drop down occasionally, no chance to eat except to snatch a bite now and then from the emergency rations they carried with them into battle. When those were gone they fought without food, as it was impossible for the commissary wagons to get to them through the shell fire. When asked how they were able to give such strenuous service without being sustained by food, he said:

"The first day was hard, but after that one forgot all about sleep and food in the excitement of the battle. One time when we had eaten nothing for three days, we had some chow spread out and were just ready to eat during a lull in the battle and the whistle sounded for us to go over the top. The Germans had made a counter attack and we had to go and leave it all.

On the 23rd of July they got replacements and were relieved for five days, during which they went back where they could sleep and be fed. After five days' rest, on the 28th, they returned to the front line. It was on August 8 that he was disabled. In describing it he said that first his left arm dropped when his shoulder was struck, but he continued firing with his right arm. He had to because he was at close quarters. Then everything went black and he fell. That was when his leg was fractured. He regained consciousness after a little and with the help of a comrade, also wounded, bound up his hurts as best he could with the materials in his first aid kit and lost consciousness again, and knew nothing more for eight hours.

W. & S. COUNCIL AND SPARTACIDES CLASH

IN STREET FIGHTING AT ESSEN WITH MACHINE GUNS MANY CASUALTIES ARE REPORTED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
Zurich, Switzerland, Dec. 23.—Bloody street fighting at Essen is said to have occurred between forces of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council and the Spartacides, with many casualties. It is stated that when the leaders of the fight were arrested at Bottor Mine by agents of the council, an armed mob attempted to destroy the Moeller mine. Council forces repulsed the attackers with machine guns, and many fell.

DISAGREEMENT ON REVENUE BILL

BY VOTE OF 38 TO 32 SENATE RETAINS LUXURIES TAXES IN BILL, BUT ELIMINATES OTHER ITEMS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
Washington, Dec. 23.—Warning Democrats that they will be wiped off the map if the revenue bill now before them is passed, Senator Kenyon of Iowa today attacked the finance committee for omitting luxury taxes from the bill as provided by the House. He declared these taxes should be increased.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California declared that two billions had been lost to the treasury because there was no 80 per cent tax on war profits in the 1917 bill. Johnson insisted that the United States is more tender to big business than is England, where there was a straight 80 per cent tax.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
Washington, Dec. 23.—(Later.)—The luxuries tax will remain in the revenue bill. The Senate defeated, by a vote of 38 to 32, the finance committee amendment, but eliminated a large number of taxes carried in the House bill.

THE PRESIDENT'S POLICY OF PUBLICITY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
Paris, Dec. 23.—President Wilson, following his policy of free discussion, will deal directly with the Allied people through speeches in England and Italy and through the press. The problem of the small nations is the most perplexing question. President Wilson will adhere to his policy of self-determination.

Robert Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, will direct the details. The cost, it is estimated, will be in the neighborhood of $260,000, which the Aero Club of America will raise.

GERMANS OPPOSE PUNISHMENT OF KAISER

PEACE DELEGATES VOTE AGAINST IT ON THE GROUND IT WOULD MAKE HIM NATIONAL HERO

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
Berlin, Dec. 23.—Germany is startled to hear President Wilson speak regarding the punishment of war-makers. The German peace delegates will oppose any penalty for the kaiser, fearing that it would make him a national hero. Sentiment in Germany is bitter against him and the crown prince. The country is generally indorsing the Ebert-Haase government. Disorders are expected to decrease as the food situation improves.

MUTINY OF CHINESE CREW

CHIEF ENGINEER AND CHIEF OFFICER OF THE STEAMER ARBIEN ARE STABBED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
San Francisco, Dec. 23.—Twenty-two Chinese, part of the crew of the steamer Arbien, in port here, mutinied and in fighting aboard the vessel stabbed the chief engineer and the chief officer, later escaping to Chinatown. The mutiny was caused by refusal to grant shore leave, owing to immigration laws. The police of San Francisco recaptured the mutineers.

ON THE LEVIATHAN

CORPORAL HAROLD M'ELROY WRITES OF LAST DAYS OF THE WAR

We are permitted to publish extracts from letters written by Corporal Harold McElroy to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McElroy of this city. He is a member of the Second Anti-Aircraft Battalion which recently arrived in New York on the Leviathan. His parents are hoping he intends to surprise them by spending Christmas at home.

November 10, 1918.
Dear Folks: I am having a day off so will write a short letter just to let you know that I am getting along fine. The sun is shining this morning for the first time in some while, but it will take lots of sunshine to dry up the oceans of mud around here.

I was on guard last night and had to walk across a gulch and about a mile up a hill to post a sentry at the gun position. The mud was ankle-deep, slushy mud, for it had been raining nearly all day. From the looks of things I guess the fighting will be over soon. Yesterday's paper said the Germans had until tomorrow noon to reply to the armistice terms. I bet those terms were an awful shock to German dreams of world power. It will be a sad day for Germany, though, if she doesn't quit now while the quitting is good.

From the sound of things here last night and this morning one would have thought that the fighting was only to last about twenty-four hours longer and that the artillery was trying on both sides to use up all the rest of the ammunition.

We are all wondering how long it will be before we get home after the fighting ceases. It seems that we have seen lots more picks, shovels and cement mixers lately. We are wondering if they are getting ready now for after the war and the job of polishing up.

Our gun section has adopted a French orphan for a year, paying for its clothes, feed and schooling. As we couldn't buy any Christmas presents here, we thought it a good way to spend our Christmas money.

November 16, 1918.
Well, the war is over. It seems too good to be true! Some think we should have carried the war on to German soil before closing, but that would have taken several months more of intense fighting with a loss of many men, both by wounds and disease. I am told life in the trenches in winter is something fierce.

The day the armistice was signed we were on a hill at the front. I had command of the guns and had the boys bring up supplies and ammunition to last through the day. The morning was foggy, not much doing, though we were on watch for German planes.

About 10:30 a lieutenant came up aid said, "All firing to cease at 11 o'clock." At the same time the heavy artillery was exceedingly active. Soon there appeared flags on the tops of the houses in the village back of us, then rockets and smoke bombs were shot up into the air. Some of the rockets released parachutes with French flags attached. When all was over, some of the boys who spoke German went over to the German soldiers, expecting to see them sad and

CARL ARFWEDSON DEAD

Carl E. Arfwedson, superintendent of the county hospital at El Centro, and for years previous an instructor at Whittier State School, and well known all through Southern California, passed away Wednesday, Dec. 18, the victim of influenza-pneumonia.

The burial services are to be conducted by the Masonic order at El Centro.

Mr. Arfwedson was a native of England and was 46 years of age. He leaves a son, Granville Arfwedson, and a brother, Alfred Dering Arfwedson of 434 West Harvard Street, Glendale.

"ANOTHER GOLD STAR"

Mrs. W. L. Andrews had been looking forward to a happy Christmas and the hope of seeing her brother, who had been fighting overseas with the Rainbow Division, but Friday she was notified by telegram that he had been killed in action Oct. 18, and this sad and belated news has killed all her Christmas joy. This brother, Ernest Powell, enlisted from his home in Battle Creek, Mich. He was but 18 years old and had but three months' training before he went to the front. She has been and still is very proud of her service flag with its single star for this brother, but now that the star has been changed to gold she feels she can hardly bear it and may have to put the emblem away.

"TIDINGS OF GREAT JOY"

CHRISTMAS THEME HANDLED IN VARIETY OF WAYS BY THE GLENDALE PASTORS

Presbyterian Church
Sermon by Rev. E. Harry Hadlock of the Y. M. C. A. Text, second chapter of St. Luke: "Behold, I bring you good tidings; for unto you is born this day a Saviour."

This is a world of sorrow and war. Even as far back as the glacier period there was a struggle for existence. The records show that during the time this world was inhabited by monsters it was still the survival of the fittest. The world of today awaits the final word of peace after one of the greatest wars. But all of the battles are not over. The church has not fulfilled its mission. The word of God has not reached every living being. Some people preach that the church is a resting place, but it is only a resting place where we may get ready to go out into the world and meet the battles of life.

We must not tell the men who come home from the battlefields that now is the time to rest. They must keep on fighting. We must believe in nature and men. We must have faith, because it is faith that keeps us alive. It was faith that gave the Allies victory.

The business man is not the only person who has his battle to fight. The woman who remains at home also has a number of battles. But peace may come into our hearts, for we only need to look to Him and we will have peace, the same peace that came to the fishermen when Jesus said, "Let there be peace."

This is a period of science. The genius of this world teaches the language of the stars, but when we come to the last star I ask, "Is this all?" The genius of religion comes, but in making a study of the science we also come to the last star and I say, "Is this all?" The genius answers: "This is only the beginning." And then we look to the universe where God reigns supreme and then, and then only, I cry: "Victory! victory!" Trust in God, believe in Jesus every day and it will give you victory all through life.

Central Christian Church
"The First Christmas Service" was the topic of the Christmas sermon at the Central Christian Church yesterday morning. The minister, Rev. Clifford A. Cole, after emphasizing the glory of the present Christmas season, spoke of the first Christmas service on the hills of Judea at the birth of Christ. He spoke of the time, the place, the congregation of shepherds, the preacher, an angel of the Lord; the sermon with the great good tidings to all men, the music of the service by an angel choir and the conclusion of the service in a resolution to go and see the thing that had taken place.

An exhortation to carry into life the message of this great first Christmas service was made by the speaker. A large audience heard the sermon and splendid music. Dudley Buck's "The Virgin's Lullaby" was sung by Mrs. J. D. Cole, accompanied by a violin obligato by William Moll of Los Angeles, who also rendered a beautiful violin solo. H. B. Miller and Mrs. Cole sang a beautiful arrangement of "There's Room in My Heart for Thee."

Congregational Church
A very beautiful Christmas service took place at the Congregational Church on Central Avenue, when the Christmas cantata, "Star of Bethlehem," was given by the choir with solo numbers as follows: "Sleep, My Saviour," Sleep, by Mrs. Gladys Stewart; "Brightest and Best," J. O. Westervelt; "O Glorious Star," Mrs. A. R. Chappell; "A Mother's Carol," Mrs. Hartley Shaw; "From Mountains Afar," Ralph Beers; "The Shepherd's Vision," Blake Franklin; "Room for the Christ Child," quartette of Messrs. Beers, Franklin, Chappell and Westervelt; "Our Star," ladies' quartette composed of Mesdames Shaw, Frazee, Chappell and Stewart.

The cantata was followed by a ten-minute Christmas sermon by Mr. Marsh, acting pastor, on the "Star of Bethlehem" and its significance, and the fact that this is the most wonderful Christmas the world has ever known, and he dwelt also on the fact that "Peace on Earth" means to the generations now living what it has never meant before.

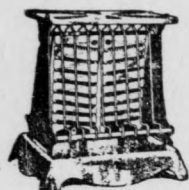

Bert P. Woodard, exalted ruler of B. P. O. Elks No. 1289, has been laid low like other potentates of the world, but he is not in the same class with the kaiser and is receiving every attention and kindness. Influenza has given the blow in his case and he expects to recover in the near future.

If you feel grippy and chilly, get out in God's sunshine and the germs will meet a sudden and sure death.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sawyer will entertain Mrs. M. E. Willis of Riverside, mother of Mrs. Sawyer, for the holidays.

In deference to the wishes of the health officer, West Glendale Methodist Sunday school officials announce that the Christmas program planned for tonight will not be given.

Mrs. Milton Armstrong of South Maryland Avenue reports with great satisfaction that her husband has come home for the holidays from Nelson, Nevada, where he is assaying for the Techatticut mines. He will be here until after the first of the year.

Mrs. Turner, wife of the assistant agent at the P. E. station, returned to Glendale on the 16th, very much improved in health. She has been absent in the east since August 27, and thinks she is going to like Glendale very much now. She was homesick when she first came.

The Red Cross booths on Brand Boulevard and Broadway are doing a good business today. Miss Leona Price is in charge of the one on the east side of the street and Miss Ruth Cole of the other one. From present indications they will have a nice sum to turn in to the Red Cross treasury tonight.

Dr. Jessie Russell of this city says she had a strenuous program to cover last week with engagements practically every day for speeches or conferences with clubs, legislators and P. T. A. committees. She reports that the newly elected state superintendent of education, Will C. Wood, is greatly interested in the work of Parent-Teachers Associations.

Miss Alice Frank contributed to an interesting program given Sunday at the Chinese mission maintained in Los Angeles by the Highland Park Presbyterian Church. The Chinese members of the mission served ice cream and cake, a nice program was given, and it was a very pretty Christmas celebration all around. Miss Frank gave a reading.

Claude Fellows received Sunday his discharge from army service at Fort MacArthur. He was originally in the navy, but was transferred to the army about a year ago, and has been in training ever since, serving in the commissary department. Last week, Monday, he was married to Miss Maud Stalling, as announced in the Evening News. He and his bride will make their home for the present with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fellows, of 234 North Howard Street, this city.

Mrs. Ream, mother of Mrs. E. L. Jodon of 320 North Maryland, has returned from a three months' visit in the east and will be the guest of her daughter over the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wood and son, Dale, of West Wilson Avenue, have gone to San Luis Obispo, where they will be holiday guests of their son, Forest W. Wood, and family.

Bugler George Hastings of the naval reserve has been granted a furlough and come home to spend Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hastings, at 509 North Maryland Avenue. He returns to his duties the day after Christmas.

Mr. A. M. Salyer, 129 North Central Avenue, will entertain in good old turkey dinner style about all the Salyers around Glendale. D. C. Salyer and wife of Los Angeles will also be guests, and Dick Salyer of Sherman will likewise celebrate the holidays with his Glendale relatives.

Have you seen the pretty arch of Christmas bells over the entrance to the Williams Dry Goods Store? They add a pretty note of color to the street, and the show windows are also very attractive. Green and red Christmas festoons have given a very holiday appearance to Yager's candy store, which also has a window gay with Christmas candies.

Willard Learned, whose home is just over the line in Burbank, but who is an active member of the Central Christian Church of this city and who has many friends here, has been discharged from army service at Camp MacArthur, near Waco, Texas. He is now at Occidental College, where he was taking a course when called to the army. He had been in the Texas camp just one week when the armistice was signed.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

Now that we are on the threshold of Christmas Day—a time of all the year that everybody should be cheerful—it is in place for those who have to minister to the needs of those who have not.

The giving in such instances should not be based on charity reasons, but the giving should be for the purpose of showing a sympathetic heart—a heart filled with brotherly love. Not all people in this world are equally fortunate in possessing an abundance of this world's goods. Sickness and misfortune have come into some homes when other homes have been permitted to enjoy good health and prosperity. Such are the conditions of life and ever have they been so, and so will they remain.

There are many men and women in Glendale who are able to aid in making a more cheerful Christmas for the less fortunate ones, and these men and women will render aid if they are made aware of the needs of the community. May it be the duty of everybody to see that every other one has a cheerful Christmas.

sitting around as at a funeral; but they seemed even more glad than we were, rejoicing that they were to have a new form of government.

On going back a few kilometers to get a pass, I saw many ambulances taking wounded to the rear. 'Twas sad to be shot when peace was so near.

U. S. S. Leviathan, Dec. 13, 1918.
Dear Folks: On board and homeward bound, about one day out from New York.

We were on the line when the fighting ceased, and all fully expected to be sent forward with the army of occupation. About a week after the armistice the adjutant came by one morning and woke us up at 4 a. m. to tell us that we were going home at once. It was such good luck we could hardly believe it. After several days we were called back to the company from the detachment we had been with, then moved to Toul, where the battalion assembled. There were lots of coast artillery troops assembled there preparing to go home, but we were the first to leave. When we got to Brest there were many more coast artillery troops waiting to go home, but none of them had seen action.

We remained in Brest nearly a week in rain and deep mud, sleeping on corrugated iron laid in the mud and most of the time no stoves to keep us warm; but luck was with us again and we pulled out before thousands of others who had been waiting longer.

Once more luck was with us, and we caught the U. S. S. Leviathan, formerly the North German Lloyd Vaterland. It is the largest boat afloat, was new and had made only one or two trips when interned in 1914.

I was seasick the first couple of days, but am o. k. now, except awfully hungry. They are running out of rations and are serving only two scant meals a day. There are about 12,000 on board, a couple of hundred from the merchant marine returning from boats the government has taken over, about 5,000 sailors of the naval aviators service returning from England, and our battalion, about 500. All the rest of the passengers are sick and wounded convalescents.

Believe me, the navy has nothing on the army when it comes to seasickness.

Our battalion is the only army organization on board, and as far as we could learn the first that had been on the line to return. I surely look forward with great expectations to being home again and the prospect of soon donning a civilian uniform—no more having to line up for everything we get and asking permission even to turn around.

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and happy New Year. As ever, when he awoke to find himself on the surgeon's operating table. In connection with his talk about going without food he said after reaching the hospital at the rear he had nothing to eat for three days, because he slept all that time from exhaustion. At the time he was hit, his company was fighting on the Vesle River, about 25 kilometers from Chateau Thierry.
HAROLD.

In the hospital he declares he had the finest of care from American surgeons and Red Cross nurses. He is very enthusiastic about the Red Cross and what it has done for the boys over there. Whatever it has in the way of comfort for the boys it hands out when they ask for it, without money and without price. The same report is made of the Salvation Army, which he says came right up to the front and served hot coffee and doughnuts without asking anything in return. The Y. M. C. A. in his section does not seem to have made as good an impression, for, as he describes the situation there, it stayed back in the rear, where it was good and safe, and maintained a canteen at which they charged three or four prices for everything they sold. As many of the boys were behind in getting their pay and therefore out of money, the luxuries at the canteen did them no good. The only things that were free at the Y. M. C. A. were the entertainments, he said. The chaplains of the different denominations came up to the front with the boys, and he saw one Y. M. C. A. worker there. Also the Knights of Columbus did all they could for the boys.

He left France two days before the armistice was signed and on arriving in New York was sent to the debarkation hospital at Ellis Island for a few days, then to the Letterman Hospital in San Francisco. He is here on a fourteen-day furlough and will return the 28th. After he secures his discharge he is planning to enter one of the industrial training schools which the government is establishing for disabled soldiers, one of them being now open at the Letterman Hospital. He wants to fit himself to be an expert mechanic.

Of what the experience has meant to him he said: "I wouldn't have missed it for a million dollars, and all the rest feel the same way, but none of us would go back except from a sense of duty." He says, too, that it has braced up a lot of the boys who were careless and irresponsible and made men of them. We need not fear, he says, that any of the boys who have homes and friends here will want to remain overseas or will marry French girls. America never appeared so good to them as when they had a chance to compare it with "over there." He himself had not the same opportunities to see the country that many others enjoyed because he was so soon wounded after his arrival.

The only disappointment he has had in connection with his treatment as a soldier thus far is that the allotments he made his parents they have not received as yet.
